Letter from President and Founder, Diane Foley

Dear Friends,

You are our HEROES! Your compassionate generosity and commitment to freedom has sustained our work for these past six years. We humbly present our 2020 Annual Report to you with our deepest gratitude.

Your moral courage inspires us each and every day to continue to advocate for the return of fellow citizens held hostage abroad and to protect our brave journalists who seek the truth. Your financial support, prayers, and caring have made all detailed within this report possible.

May God bless and protect you during this pandemic. Know that YOU have given hope to those suffering from unjust captivity and have begun to open the eyes of our country to the urgent needs of fellow Americans held hostage abroad. YOU also have helped us teach aspiring journalists to dare to seek the truth more safely.

Isaiah 42:6-7 speaks to the light and hope you each have given me since Jim's murder in 2014. Let us keep that hope and compassionate commitment to one another ablaze throughout 2021.

Sincerely yours,

Diane

Letter from Executive Director Margaux Ewen

Dear friends and supporters of the James W. Foley Legacy Foundation, 2020 was especially challenging for American hostages and journalists impacted by the pandemic and growing threats against the press. But thanks to your generous support, we were able to continue fulfilling our critical mission to support them.

We increased our advocacy on Capitol Hill in order to strengthen U.S. policy and public awareness about Americans held hostage and wrongfully detained abroad. In addition, we maintained regular and positive relationships with the Hostage Recovery Fusion Cell, National Security Council, and Special Presidential Envoy for Hostage Affairs, who already started implementing many of our policy recommendations from our 2nd annual report “Bringing Americans Home 2020.”

We published data on the current number of public hostage and wrongful detainee cases around the world to demonstrate the magnitude of this issue, while continuing to build new relationships with hostage and wrongful detainee families and those who have returned home from captivity. This is evidenced by an increase in the number of wrongful detainee participants in our 2020 report, as well as for our 2021 report, currently underway. We owe these critical achievements to our brilliant Director of Research Cynthia Loertscher.

We also deepened our commitment to holding hostage takers accountable by advocating for the U.S. extradition of two ISIS fighters allegedly responsible for the captivity, torture, and murder of Jim Foley, Steven Sotloff, Kayla Mueller, and Peter Kassig.

We released the undergraduate version of our preventive journalism safety curricula, created by our talented Education Program Director Tom Durkin in collaboration with Marquette University's Diederich College of Communication. The new curriculum includes timely resources on safely covering COVID-19 and nationwide protests for racial equality. At least 15 universities are currently using some or all of these resources, and we continue to share them through virtual panel discussions produced at journalism conferences or interested universities.

We continued our collaboration with the Alliance for a Culture of Safety (ACOS) to strengthen safety for freelance journalists around the world, providing 13 freelancers with access to a special online Hostile Environment First Aid Training refresher course by the Dart Center for Journalism & Trauma at Columbia University. The pandemic forced these trainings online and brought a new layer of safety challenges to the forefront, and we expect this trend to continue in 2021.

Despite these advances, we still learn about new cases of Americans taken hostage or wrongfully detained by foreign governments who need our help. Practicing journalism has never been more dangerous, with traditional frontlines of war zones no longer being the only dangerous place from which to report the news. We have our work cut out for us in 2021 and beyond, but we know that with your critical support, we can make a difference – together.

Thank you for allowing us to do better as Americans to bring our hostages home and to protect our press freedom.

Sincerely,

Margaux Ewen

HOSTAGE ADVOCACY

Research & publications:

- In 2020, JWFLF released its second non- governmental review of U.S. hostage policy. “Bringing Americans Home,” published in partnership with New America, featuring interviews with 25 former American hostages, detainees and their family members and representatives. The report found that overall, the structures created by the U.S. government’s 2015 Hostage Review largely continue to function effectively, but there is a notable disparity in the treatment of hostage and wrongful detainee families by the U.S. government, with the latter receiving less attention, information, and access.

- We officially released data on the current number of publicly known hostage and wrongful detainee cases, the countries where this is occurring, our methodology, a full list of Americans released since our founding, and an In Memoriam section for those killed in captivity. At the time of printing this report, at least 48 Americans are currently being held in 12 countries. As these numbers include only publicly disclosed cases, it is estimated that many more cases exist that are never made public. This dataset currently represents the largest collection of this information available in one place.

JWFLF directly advocated for 27 families + former hostages/
wrongful detainees

Hostage Policy Advocacy:

Robert Levinson

■ In 2020, we deepened our relationship with the U.S. congress, having worked with the co-sponsors of the Robert Levinson Hostage Recovery and Hostage-Taking Accountability

Act. With strong bipartisan support, the bill was finally adopted into law in the final days of 2020. This law will significantly strengthen hostage policy and fully incorporate the return of wrongful detainees into current U.S. policy.

■ We successfully pushed the Justice Department to facilitate the extradition of two ISIS fighters who allegedly participated in the kidnap, torture, and murder of Jim Foley, Steven Sotloff, Kayla Mueller, and Peter Kassig so they may be tried in the U.S. They were extradited and are expected to face trial sometime in 2022. This is a critical step towards accountability, an essential deterrent for future hostage-taking.

JOURNALISM SAFETY

Journalist Safety Curricula:

- Last year we were proud to launch the James W. Foley Journalism Safety Modules thanks to generous support from the Scripps Howard Foundation and the Society of Professional Journalists Foundation. Our talented Education Program Director Tom Durkin created the modules based on our graduate Journalist Safety Guide, developed in partnership with Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism. After a successful piloting process at Marquette University's Diederich College of Communication, we launched the modules on May 1st, including a new module on covering COVID-19, and we made further updates in July to address the growing violence and risk of arrest journalists faced across the country after George Floyd's death and ensuing protests.
- In addition to Marquette University and Northwestern University, New York University, University of Missouri, University of Oklahoma, University of Florida, University of Texas at Austin, American University, Arizona State University, West Virginia University, University of New Hampshire, Weber State University, Quinnipiac University, the University of Central Missouri, and the University of Southern California are currently using our materials, reaching an estimated 500 aspiring journalists and freelance reporters, combined.
- We started working with The Samir Kassir Foundation's SKeys Center for Media and Cultural Freedom in Lebanon to identify parts of the Modules that could be translated into Arabic and will continue our work in 2021 to expand access to the curricula to all aspiring journalists and freelancers in need of preventive safety education.

Continued Access to safety training for journalists.

- Covid-19 put a stop to in-person Hostile Environment First Aid Training (HEFAT) courses for which we have traditionally provided grants to allow more access for freelance journalists. Yet risks for journalists in the field have never been higher and the need was still there. We were proud to send 13 freelance journalists to a special virtual refresher course led by the Dart Center for Journalism & Trauma at Columbia University, in lieu of in-person training.

FOR JOURNALISM
& TRAUMA

JWFLF also participated in several virtual events with our partners including:

- A Culture of Safety Alliance (ACOS) annual safety coordination meeting
- “Reporting Safely In Violent And Virulent Times” co-hosted by West Virginia University’s Reed College of Media and Ogden Newspapers Seminar Series
- “American Mavericks: Journalists Dorothy Day & James Foley” presented by the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee
- “Reporting as Journalists of Color: Why We Need to Add ‘Safety’ to Our Conversations about Diversity in Our Newsrooms” at the Online News Association’s 2020 annual conference
- “Journalism in the Time of COVID: Ethics, Safety and Self-Care Training Workshop” hosted by West Virginia University’s Reed College of Media
- “Building a Culture of Safety for the Next Generation of Filmmakers and Journalists” at the Double Exposure International Film Festival

MORAL COURAGE IN CHALLENGING TIMES

Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, we postponed our annual in-person 2020 James W. Foley Freedom Awards gala until 2021. In its place we hosted a live-streamed inspiring and intimate discussion and fundraising event, Moral Courage in Challenging Times, to discuss how the global COVID-19 pandemic, an increase in protests for racial equality, and a surge in attacks against the press who cover them have impacted the work of leaders, advocates, and the public.

The virtual event was viewed by interested public, U.S. government officials, journalists, returning American hostages and their families, media organizations, press freedom non-profits, educators, and students. Keynote Speaker Admiral William H. McRaven, U.S. Navy four-star admiral and former ninth commander of the U.S. Special Operations Command, opened the discussion featuring our four extraordinary awardees:

In 2020, to keep our runners, spectators, sponsors, and supporters safe during the Covid-19 pandemic, the 6th annual James W. Foley Freedom Run took place virtually worldwide. On Saturday, October 17th, 2020, nearly 1100 runners from all over the world participated in this one-of-a-kind road race that began in New Hampshire in 2015 in remembrance of James W. Foley.

Although we were not able to join together in person, thanks to our generous sponsors and supporters who participated, fundraised and donated, we surpassed our $100,000 goal to reach nearly $120,000!

FOLEY FREEDOM FUND

The James W. Foley Legacy Foundation was started in 2014 to advocate for American hostages & their families, so that no one would again experience what the Foley family went through. In 2019, we launched the Foley Freedom Fund to further grow our advocacy for American hostages and their families, and to ensure all aspiring and freelance journalists have access to preventive safety education. In spite of the pandemic, in 2020 we raised almost $200,000 thanks to all of you!

We believe

- Our government should make the return of any American kidnapped or unjustly detained abroad a national priority.
- Our U.S. hostage policy must be improved to encourage the return of its citizens.
- Our government should be compassionate and transparent with American hostage families.
- Our government should encourage and cooperate with non-governmental experts willing to assist with hostage recovery.
- More must be done to prevent hostage taking through raising awareness and preventive security training, particularly for journalists.

We're aiming high and extending the Foley Freedom Fund to raise $1 million in order to see our vision realized: that all American hostages will return home and journalists who bring truth to light, like Jim, will be protected.

JIM: THE JAMES FOLEY STORY

“For some reason I have physical courage, but, really when I think about it, that’s nothing compared to moral courage. I can go and get those shots, but if I don’t have the moral courage to challenge authority, to write about things that are going to maybe have reprisals on my career, if I don’t have that moral courage, we don’t have journalism.”
